We heard of a case where an applicant for government favors here was about moving the interest of the leading mercantile firms. A friend who was up to the ropes, told the applicant that he could not make a worse move, and he forbore. We know of another case, where another applicant told the Governor plainly, that he could have obtained the influence of the leading firms, had he thought they would have favorably effected His Excellency's mind-Governor R. replied that the party had done perfectly right in avoiding such a medium.

That most discourteous and unnecessary Ordinance relative to the payment of the taxes into the Treasury, was one of the fruits of this repellent spirit. The alteration in the Postoffice was undonbtedly actuated by the same motives. The idea running in these men's minds is simply this-finding that they cannot command respect, they determine on causing annoyance, under the notion that they will make themselves felt-and so indeed they do. But we will declare our belief that since the day when Gesler had his cap stuck up in the market place two more empty. A PETITION, numerously signed by the more needless, more imperious enactments traders and inhabitants at Sow-kei-wan, was were never made, then the ordinance made Purposes, in boxes of 25, one pound bundles each. and the treasury and nost office departments were content. The new system is distasteful, to the public, and is much disliked by the departments above stated. What possible object could there have been then in the alter-

> And touching the English silver and copper ourrency which Governor Robinson has so unceremoniously thrown out of circulation; we take leave to say that he has not only committed a very unjust act, but also a very impolitic one. The new currency he is so hotly lengaged upon, is admittedly an experiment. Had he exhibited his sense of justice with respect to the small English coin now here, the public would have had great confidence in this new scheme, from the conclusion that if it should fail, private rights would be respected. Acting as he has done however, the public have a fair right to infer. that should the new currency fail, they will be left with a large amount on their hands rendered incontrovertible without a moment's warning This just shows what a little Governor Robinson understands of these matters, and how entirely he rides rough shod over the public interest he is paid to protect, when one of the crotchets concucted for his own aggrandisement is on the tanis.

American jail. The preliminaries had been fully arranged, and a guard of forty police provided carefully watched during the night, but about half past five yesterday morning, while pretending to be asleep, he succeeded in inflicting a wound on his throat, completely severing the juguiar voin. The jailor noticed that he commenced to breathe heavily, and accordingly went to the bedside, and turned down the clothes. He found the prisoner lying in a pool of blood, apparently insensible. Dr. Boone was immediately called in, but death ensued in about a quarter of an hour. When removing the prisoner from the English jail it was not considered necessary to search him and he was thus enabled to secrete about his person the knife with which he succeeded in committing suicide. It is possible that the knife may have been accidentally dropped in his cell, or, as s more probable, it may have been brought to him by same of the prisoners who, we understand, had access to him while he was in confinement. The occurrence of this incident ought, however, to have the effect of making the jailors of the respective prisons more careful in preventing any chance of condemned criminals escaping the penalty of the

It remains only to be mentioned that some of the foreign residents, as soon as they heard of a vessel ashore, proceeded to the spot; some by water, (among whom was the British Consul,) and some by land. By this latter route the distance is reckoned at 25 ri, something over 60 miles. The road first skirts the shore of the barbour and : Bay of Hakodadi, then follows a long valley into the mountains, which are crossed by a xig-zag bridle path. The sea shore of the straits is then reached, and one passes thro' several substantia villages, proceeding all the time to the Southward and Westward. After the road leaves the sea again, another high mountain has to be traversed and thence you descend to the sea about three miles from Matsumai.
